Chinese have thus been enabled to turn to account the hitherto worthless sweeping of the barbers' shop. It is to be hoped, however, that these Colestial locks undergo some purification before exportation, since the heads from which they were taken are seldom conspicuous for cleanliness. The wearers of falso bair are not too particular in inquiring from whence came their elegant plaits and curls, and in this case, perhaps, ignorance is bliss. A rather serious accident occurred yesterday, at a little after noon, on board of the steamship Cheang Hock Kian whilst lying on Captain Sand's slip. The orew were engaged taking down the derrick, when through some mismanagement it slipped and knocked the serang and two men down into the fore-hold, a depth of nearly 30 feet, on to some granite ballast. The serang was very seriously inquired about the bead, and was at once conveyed to the Civil Hospital where he lies in a precarious condition. The other two appear to have fallen in a different way, and are but slightly inquired.
